

How to contribute to open source

Saturday, 12 December 2020 16:45 (1 hour)

In this tutorial we will give a brief introduction of how most free & open source projects are developed these days, we will summarize the differences between GitLab and GitHub (arguably the two most popular platforms to host source code nowadays) and make a git walk-through to make our first contribution to a (dummy) project.

Attendees will not need to have anything installed, just a reliable Internet connection and a GitLab account.

Primary author: Mr CANO RODRÍGUEZ, Juan Luis

Session Classification: Room #1